There was another collision with the bumper by an Eckington car Saturday night, and this time the car was full of people. The brake failed to work, and the shock of the collision was such as to give the passengers a decided shaking up. Only one was injured, however—Miss Middlekauff, who jumped from the car and was bruised about the lower limbs. It is said that the motorman had complained that the brake failed to act and that the car was taken into the shop and kept about an hour, presumably being repaired. It was then put on the road, and the accident occurred. After the collision one of the employes at the power house came out and ran the car up to the top of the hill and down to the bumper, stopping it without any difficulty. Bethesda Park, the present terminus of the road, is distant about five miles from this place, and it is understood that a large proportion of the land through which the road would run is already in the control of the present company. At present the road has to depend, in a great measure, for revenue on merely local travel along the line, as since the burning of the hotel at Bethesda Park it has almost: ceased to be a point of attraction even during the summer months. The extension of the road to Rockville would give it a large number of passengers who travel daily to Washington.
